GLOBAL GREEN NEW DEAL

A VISION FOR ACHIEVING CLIMATE, SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC JUSTICE

The prevailing neoliberal global economic system has put societies and nature in a threatening situation. Despite decades of promises to end extreme poverty, to fight world hunger and provide a decent life for all, to mitigate the climate change and the extinction of various species, the economic policy of exploiting nature, resources and people continues to drive the global economy and destroy the foundations of life on the planet and the planet itself. Instead of improvement of living conditions, we experience a variety of crises that influence and increase each other. A Global Green New Deal could initiate the transition from the current system to a climate-friendly, fair and just way of economics and a fundamental change of the world economy. A comprehensively, equitably and environmentally sustainable Global Green New Deal that addresses the multiple crises is more necessary than ever.

The Rosa Luxemburg Foundation Brussels will offer two public events. The first event will open the conference on the Global Green New Deal. This opening session will be time to draw the foundation for a leftist approach toward global transformations, decolonial, feminist and challenging global power structures. This proposes recommendations, objectives and suggestions for implementing a GGND as a response to the multiple crises the world is now facing. The second public event will present the results and discuss them with politicians regarding their feasibility.
